JAPAN AND WAR.

A curious paragraph appears in one of correspondent at Poking, has written a letter to a newspaper man in Manila, in which he says :- Concerning the Russo-Japanese War, chances are unquestionably improving. Russia has no intention of leasing Manchuris, and fire-works may result. The information that I can get here leads me to think that some sort of a fight may be counted on within two years at the outside.' It certainly remains as true as ever that one must go abroad to learn the news. Not long ago, it was Count von Walderseld who was predicting early hostilities between Japan and Russia. Colonel Marchand of Fashoda fame is credited with holding similar views, and the number of press correspondents who have predicted an early declaration of war by Japan against. Russia is legion. It appears to be only in Japan that this idea is not prevalent, and perhaps the war-mongers will quote in reply the old proverb that lookers-on see most of the game. That may be, but we venture nevertheless to believe that in this case the belief generally held by residents that Japan's aims are pacific is more likely to be correct than the views of persons who arrive on the scene with preconceptions ato Japan's aggressiveness. There was a time not so many years ago, we admir when it did seem that Japan was light on resisting Russia's southward progress, by force if necessary, but a good deal has happened since then. At that time, Russia appeared to have succeeded to the domination in Korea which Japan had exereised for a brief period after the war with China, Troops were being trained meder Russian officers, and the finances of Korea were in the hands of Russian experts. For a while the King of Korea was a guest at the Russian Legation, where he had voluntarily taken refuge. At that time, it seemed as if Russia had only to stretch out her hand to enter into actual, as she was already in virtual possession of the peninsula. There is good reason to may be seen at the Offices of the Naval believe that, in face of these concerted movements of Russia, Japan was prepared to make a fight for the possession of the territory if need be, and preparations for eventualities were pushed rapidly forward, A great change took place, however, when Russia, after the seizure of Port Arthur. withdrew her military instructors and tinancial administrators from Korea. It was a heavy blow to Japan to find the harbour, which had been surrendered by her apon the 'advice' of the three Powers, pass intothe hands of one of the protestants. At source of relief, when the Japanese Government came to calmly consider the situation. to realise that Russia had now obtained 1551 the southern port for which she had striven so long without elienating any part of Kores, where Japanese interests were regarded as paramount. The larer events in Manchuria have undoubtedly been watched with close attention in this country, and yet, if Russia determines to remain in possession of that territory, we have no doubt that Japan will resign herself to the inevitable. The more so, indeed, that events seem to be already proving that, under Russian domination, Mancharia is likely to prove a hetter market for Japanese goods: than when administered by the Chicose. It scome to us, therefore, that those are unduly abardist who hold that Japan is only raiting for an eopportunity to strike. If the British Government had so believed. there would certainly have been no Auglo-

> The days of mythological beliefs have gone. This is an era of science-a matter-of-fact age. The darkness of ignorance and superstition is giving way to the penetrating light of modern science—the revelation of facts. Modern science has discovered that the best medicinal cod liver oil, in its analysis, may be separated into two distinct parts-one the clarified oil the other, a mass of certain semi-solid substances, known as extractives. The oil is not materially different from other fixed oils and has little or no medicinal value. On the other hand, the extractives are peculiarly active, and the conclusion cannot be avoided that to the presence of these active principles cod liver eil owes its re-1030 putation as a remedy. No other oil has such a reputation. No other oil has such constituents. The extractives hold the same relation to cod liver oil that quinine sustains to crude cinchona bark. They are the curative essence of cod liver oil. When taken as they may be freed from the vile. unnecessary oil, their curative value is greatly increased, for they are not hampered by the presence of the noxious fat, Upon this scientific fact.

FORGING BANK NOTES.

Remarkable Story of a Gang of . Counterfoiters. James Edward, aged about 70, of Dublin, a bookmaker by protession, was accested art Antworp at the end of May charged with complicity in passing forged 2100 Bank of England notes on an Exchange broker.

Two separate rolls of notes, each amounting to £100, were found on him, and this leads the authorities to believe that similar notes had been passed either at Brussels or

A man who successfully passed a note at Antwerp escaped with £100, after having been seen conversing with the prisoner before the broker's window. The police consequently arrested Edward. The other man was described as apparently an Englishman and aged about 45.

The police authorities believed that the notes were the production of London forgers. Scotland Yard was communicated with, and, the forged notes placed in the hands of the Juge d'Instruction. They are said to have been remarkably counterfeited.

An elderly Englishman named George Clarke was accested at Pavis the same afternoon when attempting to pass off £900 given to repairing worth of counterfeit Bank of England notes at the offices of the Compagnic Transat lantique, and the police considered they had laid hands on one of the members of a regular band of English forgers.

Clarke's story was that he had just arriv ed from Dieppe, having crossed from on American best. It was on the deck of this boat, he said, that he found the banknotes wrapped in a pocket-book; but while this story was obviously false in many points the Commissary of Police noticed that the bank-notes, of which there were several in Clarke's pocket, besides what he tried to pass at the Teansatlantique Company's offices, presented the same features as certain false English notest which were passed at an exchange office in the Rue de In Chaussee d'Antin towards the end of last N. H. C. Wilks, late of Kowloon Docks, has established himself,

The swindle committed in the Ruc del a Chaussee d'Antin was only the climax to many similar. Complaints were made last year to the police, and in all cases themotes forged were English. They were admirably counterfeited, and the greatest skill was required to distinguish them from 'the genuine thing.

Nearly all the spurious notes, however, showed the same features, and the police had little doubt that there are at the present time a band of skilled forgers, probably composed of both Frenchmen and Englishmen, engaged solely in the manufacture of these English notes.

IMPORTIDS IN THE BLOOD .- We have seen hosts of letters from people who bave received great benefit from the bas of Clarke's Blood thill have brought to light, and we can with the nimost confidence recommend it to our subscribers and the public generally. For Scroinle, Scurvy, Ferena, Bud Legs, Skin and Blood Discores, Pimples and Sores of all kinds, its effects are marveilous. Thousands of wonderful cures bare been effected by it. COLLISION AT KIUKIANG.

British Gunboats Damaged.

The N.-C. Daily News says :- We have received the following details of an accident in which several British men-of-war and a local merchant vessel were concerned.

On Tuesday last, the 22nd July, the I.-C. str. Suive arrived at Kicking from Hankow, at about 8 a.m., moored, and began discharging cargo. At II a.m. the British cruiser Pique, the sloops Mutine and Reserve, and the gunbout Britomart, arrived on their way to Hankow, and anchored in single file in the order of their names as above. Shortly after noon, the fortunately a very strong-current was run-ning at the time, and the Suice, caught by office is utterly unsuitable? No answer the chow chow water, refused to answer her helm. She drifted on to the Pique first, fortunately missing the ram, and scraped the cruiser from bow to midships, carrying away davits and other gear, then crashed into the bowsprit of the Mutine, cutting clean through it. In spite of a severe tournament for two valuable silver bowls, | davits of the Pique, Captain Lambie stuck under coutrol he steered her clear of the other two men-of-war and came to anchor. We understand Captain Lambie went aboard the Pique to see Captain Reynolds about the accident, and was complimented upon the skilful manner in which he had the officers of the cruiser saying that but

Both vessels left at once for Spithead, steaming slowly, however, to allow lunch to be had before reaching the destination. It was not until about 1 o'clock before we came into sight of the great fleet. The speed was then re commenced its journey through the lines of the batt eships, cruisers and smaller craft. It was a sight that impressed one indelibly with the greatness of Britain's power on the sea. 'As each warship was tremendous outhursts cheers were given, which the tars as sembled on deck did not fail to reciprocate heartily. It was quite a sightpative troops from all parts of the Empire wild with delight, cheering and shouting until they were quite hourse. The return journey was made after all the lines had been passed, and Southampton was reached at 5 p.m. Unfortunately, it had just commeaded to rain heavily, and the men were quite drenched in the process of discin-

After breakfast, we were conveyed in lonial troops marched on to the Horse Guard's Parade to be reviewed by the Prince of Wales. Throughout the route. the streets were lined by thousands of people, who were quite delighted to have an opportunity of seeing the Colonials, and cheer after cheer was raised as the Contingent passed. A circuitous route had been arranged, so as to allow room for as many people as wanted to view the procession, At the Horse Guard's Parade, the Duke of Connaught personally attended a the formation of the troops. I should spare your readers the details of the review, as the papers have such long accounts with every minute detail. Suffice it to say that it was such a grand affair that the Hongkong 'boys' felt quite proud to participate in it. Rolls of cheers along the Mall marked the approach of the Queen, who soon appeared and was received with the Royal Salute. Sho was attended by various princes, and the carriages that followed conrained other Princesses and some of, the distinguished Coronation guests Shortly afterwards, the Prince of Wales, attended by Princes (British and foreign), followed on horseback. The review was soen communeed, the Queen going along lines of troops in her carriage. After the Queen, Lord Roberts, carrying his Field Marshal's baton, had the place of honour, being placed in front of the Prince Wales. A memorable march-past then took placé. At one point, we were sported by some Hongkongites, who, the remark, 'They are a smarr led the cheers for us. It would see a like claiming too much, but it is nevertheless the accepted fact that the Hongkong Thoys are as smart a lot of Volunteers as there is in Camp here, and can hold their own in drill and marching against now of the other Colonial contingents. For this, great credit is due to Sergt.-Major Borrett for bringing the men up to this state of efficiency. It is a matter of regret, though, that we are not better clothed. All the other contingents have had special uniforms
